

THE WHITE HOUSE

WASHINGTON

Dear Mr. Herring:

Please let me add to the chorus of your many admirers and wish you the very best as you leave government service. I know that your distinguished career was a full and productive one in the highest tradition of intelligence professionals.

Your accomplishments in the areas of technology assessment and technology transfer have been of unique value to our national security. Of particular note has been your personal involvement in the pioneering effort to help provide this Nation with the ability to meet the threat posed by the acquisition of Western technology by potential adversaries.

You and your family can be justly proud of your many valuable contributions. I join a grateful Nation in wishing you and yours all the best for the future.

Sincerely,

Mr. Jan P. Herring
